A Brief Description of the Property

Flying Butler Bloomsbury nestles within a cultural hub of Central London, with The British Museum and Royal Opera House nearby as well as notable landmarks including Covent Garden Market and large garden squares such as Russell Square and Bloomsbury Square. The location is neighboured by many pubs, restaurants, theatres and outstanding shopping opportunities.

The building offers studio and one-bedroom apartments. Studios come with basic kitchenettes; the one-bedroom apartments offer a kitchen area with a full-sized fridge/freezer, hob, oven and microwave. All apartments are air-conditioned, individually furnished and beautifully decorated.

What we love about this neighbourhood:

Resting within the heart of London, Bloomsbury is an alluring microcosm of park squares, museums, eclectic eateries and independent bookshops; one can appreciate why The Bloomsbury Group circle of artists adopted the neighbourhood as their home back in the first half of the 20th century. A certain atmosphere permeates the streets: long lunches in healthy-eating havens, relaxed reading on benches, strolling through parks with an artisan coffee in hand. There is something rather magical about walking out the front door of our apartments here and being welcomed by the world-renowned, iconic sight of The British Museum.
